Something which resembles happiness

“One must not be afraid of happiness.
It is solely a good moment to experience.”

OBJECT THEATRE

A PARTICIPATIVE, WALKABOUT SHOW FOR 70 PEOPLE

Does happiness not come from the way in which we observe the small things in life, the things that carry a spark or open doors to our imagination?

Happiness needs wandering, like the one we offer ourselves when we begin a voyage.
It is on the path we travel, with the right to drift,
with discoveries and pitfalls.

What moves us when we go on a voyage?
What are we looking for?

What do we expect from the unknown, is it the contact with others? and if by allowing us to enter their lives, would they not enlighten our own?

Here we attempt to do so with lightness and humour.

In this creation, we call upon the memories of a handful of people we have met and questioned on the theme of happiness.
It is based upon their testimonies and their experiences.
It is the replies from children, elderly folk, Mr and Mrs everyone.

In our shows, we are often driven by a need to transform or re-invent the performance space. This time we use a space in which the actors and spectators cohabit.

The spectators whom we name travellers, are guided on their journey by two station masters André and Luiz, accompanied by Luciano the musician.

Each traveller is given a numbered chair, light and easily movable.
It represents the main element of the scenography.

Using their chairs, the travellers are invited to configure the space by following the instructions given to them. In this way, they contribute individually and collectively, creating five scenes which shape their voyage.

By establishing this complicity with the public, we attempt to expand our field of vision and stimulate the imagination, without saying or explaining, solely by suggestion.

It is through this shared pathway that the meaning of the play emerges.

By sensibly resonating objects and images, they become evocative signs of a poetic universe, so we are staying faithful to our field of predilection: Object Theatre.

The importance is the voyage, not the destination.

Tania Castaing & Charlot Lemoine

Concept, scenography and performance

The Velo Theatre was founded by Tania Castaing & Charlot Lemoine issue of the Beaux Arts in London and Angers.
Since 1981 they have been working towards an intimate and poetic relationship with the public.

Believing that emotions are born from the fragile relationship that the actor establishes with the objects surrounding him; Velo Theatre amongst others, invented a new style of expression, Object Theatre.
Although they have since added text to certain creations, the joy of manipulating objects is still intense and intact.

In 1993 the company moved to a disused fruit preserving factory in Apt, Vaucluse. Now transformed into a theatre, it has become their home base, as well as a reception space for other national and international theatre groups in residence.

Velo Theatre poetic migrants and pilgrims, have toured the world since 30 years, with silent or polyglot shows addressing one and all.

José Lopez

A versatile stage manager since 1997, he has helped guide the creations of Velo Theatre through his enlightening insight. He has gradually stepped out of his technical role to become more involved in the concept and as a performer on stage.

Fabien Cartalade

Composer and multi-instrumental musician, classically trained (trumpet & trombone), he has continually evolved between jazz, rock and philharmonic orchestras (Négresses Vertes, Raoul Petite, Les Robertes, Gaio).

Following a first successful collaboration, the company wished to associate him in this new creation. They have given him the reins of the musical composition and interpretation.

Catherine Poher

Catherine Poher has been a close friend of the Velo Theatre for many years. She trained in Paris as a visual artist and architect. She worked in Copenhagen with Kirsten Delholm around projects in public spaces. In 1991 Catherine created Bjorneteatre with Tom Nagel Rasmussen and has since worked with various Danish and French theatre groups: Theatre Rio Rose, Hans Ronne in Odder, Gruppe 38 Theatre Manarf and Skappa!. Often crowned with prizes, her shows have toured the globe.

Nicolas Joray

It is through his research work in anthropology that Nicolas Joray participated in the creation of Velo Theatre as an assistant in stage direction. Passionate about the relationships between art and society, he graduates with a Masters at the University of Neuchatel, Switzerland.

Flop Lefebvre

Like Charlot Lemoine and Tania Castaing, Flop came from the Beaux-Arts in Angers. This creation is a new opportunity for them to work together.

Co-founder of the group ZUR in 1984, he works on the interface of fine art, film, sound, performance, lighting and dance. Besides this he undertakes research into brico-luminology collaborating with other groups and companies such as Lili DésaStres, Skappa!, Theatre Manarf, Gruppe 38, les Souffleurs de rêves... and the Velo Theatre for "Complot du rêve" in 1989 and "The frog at the bottom of the well believes that the sky is round" 2013.

Les Ateliers du spectacle

Velo Theatre also called upon the expertise and technical experience of the Ateliers du spectacle, with whom they have been partners for years.
