CHARLOT LEMOINE
FABIEN CARTALADE

The Velo Theatre was founded by Tania Castaing & Charlot Lemoine issue of the Beaux Arts in London and Angers. Since 1981 they have been working towards an intimate and poetic relationship with the public. Believing that emotions are born from the fragile relationship that the actor establishes with the objects surrounding him; Velo Theatre amongst others, invented a new style of expression, Object Theatre. Although they have since added text to certain creations, the joy of manipulating objects is still intense and intact. In 1993 the company moved to a disused fruit preserving factory in Apt, Vaucluse. Now transformed into a theatre, it has become their home base, as well as a reception space for other national and international theatre groups in residence. Velo Theatre poetic migrants and pilgrims, have toured the world since 30 years, with silent or polyglot shows addressing one and all.

An extreme situation, between heaven and earth, between life and death, one is lost for a night in the madness of solitude. Suddenly the room becomes the cabin of a boat, the bed an ice field filled with penguins. The lost man makes his miniature cinema where objects come to life. He dominates, manipulates them like a mad king full of his power which he knows is artificial. But in this confined space, in the form of a childish game, the man will make a real decision - he will give himself up to the void. Whether he falls or flies, the call of the air and of the sea have made him free.
